As Vice President of Operations of Frasco, Inc., Noelle Harling is one of the employment background screening industry's leading experts. Harling is passionate about providing employers with accurate, timely, and legally compliant information through innovative research techniques and leading edge technology. Under her leadership, Frasco, Inc. has experienced aggressive growth, consistent profitability, and exceptional client satisfaction and retention.

Upon accepting the award, Harling said, "I am truly humbled by such recognition from my colleagues and competitors in the employment background screening industry. It has been my pleasure to lead the first three years of this organization's efforts to establish an accreditation program for the employment background check industry based on accepted legal compliance standards and operational best practices. Together we are creating a program that will strengthen our industry, serve the interests of employers and protect the rights of job applicants and employees."

Noelle Harling is the first recipient of the National Association of Professional Background Screeners (NAPBS) Distinguished Service Award and a three-term chair of the NAPBS Ethics and Accreditation Committee.

NAPBS is an all-volunteer organization founded in 2003 as a non-profit trade association. NAPBS serves to represent the interest of companies offering employment background screening services. NAPBS gives the employment background screening industry the ability to effectively demonstrate its competence, reliability and willingness to adopt standards. NAPBS is the best means to associate those companies able and willing to conform to standards and to meet the highest expectations of our clients and law-makers.

The NAPBS Ethics and Accreditation Committee was created to protect consumers and promote advancement and integrity of the industry by establishing standardized industry technology, ethical guidelines for consumer reporting practices and security standards for consumer information.
